Hahn Urges Continued Smog Study

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn this week urged Smith Griswold, air pollution control officer, to concentrate his energy and research toward solving the air pollution coming from the refineries and motor vehicles.

"I have noticed including this week, pollution coming from the refineries," Supervisor Hahn informed Griswold.

He told Griswold that he believed that it would be wise for him to confer with automotive industry leaders and engineers in Detroit concerning progress on devices which would remove the air pollution from the automotive exhaust.

ANTHONY'S ADVENTURES THE PIZZA AND THE PANTS

Recently a group of young people dropped in to have pizza. They were boys and girls of the graduating class of Chadwick School. One of the boys, a tall, well-dressed fellow, had a large sausage pizza. He tackled the pie with his fork despite advice from an Italian boy in the group that the right way to eat pizza was with his hands. Well, the tables are small at our place, the large pizza trays are large, and the table was crowded. The fork slipped—and the pizza was no longer on the tray but was gracefully decorating a clean white shirt and a pair of flannel pants. Did the boy give up? No! He salvaged most of the pie from his lap, cleaned his clothes as much as possible and went back to work with the fork. At this point my mommy, who was worrying about the clothes, advised the boy to try eating the pizza with his fingers. But the situation had become a challenge and he continued eating with a grimly clenched fork. Then disaster struck again—and the few clean spots on the pants were no longer clean. And the pizza could not be saved.

Mommy had foreseen this and made another pie. This time the boy ate it with his hands. By the time he was through he was handling pizza like a veteran. This boy is valetictorian of his class—and I'll bet they never have a nicer one.

LUCKY, LUCKY YOU
 Daddy and mommy have given me a large pizza to give away each week. I actually pick the names. This week the winner is Ralph A. Keller, 1411 Elm, Torrance. Come and get it, Ralph.
